There are many arguments that support zoos, many people consider that they are beneficial for animals as well as the general public. One reason is that orphaned animals are taken in and protected. Unfortunately in the wild, many animals are killed or hunted by predators or even humans; they want their fur or tusks that are extremely valuable. Some of these hunted animals leave behind small, vulnerable young, which left on their own, would definitely be killed or die of starvation, as they are unable to hunt for themselves. Besides this, another advantage is that zoos are educational places for the public.
