The Tudor family came to power in 1485 when Henry VIII's father, Henry VII, defeated King Richard III at the Battle of Bosworth. This battle ended the Wars of the Roses which had seen the York family and Lancaster family at war with each other to decide who should rule the country. Henry VII was a Lancastrian and he married Elizabeth of York, thus uniting the two families.

The Tudor Rose symbolises the red Lancaster rose and the white York rose and reminded people that the Wars of the Roses were finally over.

Henry VIII's Six Wives

Henry VIII came to the throne on 21 April 1509. He was the second son of Henry VII and hadn't expected to become king because his older brother, Arthur, was first in line for the crown. However, Arthur died before he could become king and it was therefore up to Henry to rule England.

BACK

NEXT

Henry's first wife was Catherine of Aragon. Catherine had been married to Arthur but when he died she became Henry's wife. She was the daughter of King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella of Spain. Catherine and Henry were married for 24 years before they got divorced.

NEXT

Anne Boleyn was Henry's second wife. He married her very soon after his divorce from Catherine of Aragon. Henry was besotted with Anne's charm and beauty when they first married, but when she failed to produce a son Henry decided he needed a new wife. Rumours circulated that Anne was unfaithful to Henry.

Some people even said she was a witch. She was beheaded in 1536. They had been married less than three years.

NEXT

Jane Seymour was married to Henry soon after Anne Boleyn was executed. She gave Henry the son he so desperately wanted. They called him Edward.

BACK

However, there were problems after the birth and Jane died when Edward was just two weeks old.

NEXT

Anne of Cleves was Henry's fourth wife but Henry divorced her after only six months. She was given a big divorce settlement and she outlived all of Henry's other wives.

NEXT

Catherine Howard was married to Henry almost immediately after his divorce to Anne of Cleves. Catherine was Anne Boleyn's cousin. She was married to Henry for two years before Henry had her executed on charges of treason and adultery.

NEXT

Catherine Parr was the last of Henry's wives. She married Henry in 1543 and was his wife until Henry died in 1547.

Catherine was the most married English Queen, having four different husbands in her lifetime!
