

WALT: I can use how adverbs to add descriptive detail. I star

Edit each sentence so you include the how adverb before the verb you want to describe.

The following morning when the sun was still asleep, Lila left the village and set off to find the highest mountain she could.

Lila walked and walked and walked, and at last she found herself at the foot of a very tall mountain.

Lila began to climb, higher and higher and higher.

When Lila reached the top of the mountain she began to tell the sky the saddest things she knew.

Challenge-can you write you own sentence for this part of the story using a 'how' adverb after the verb?
