

Hi Class 5!

Thank you so much to those of you that have been sharing your work on ClassDojo. I can see that you are trying hard to keep yourselves in the school frame of mind by completing all of the tasks I set. The harder you try now, the better you will feel when you do return to school.

Ordinarily, at this time of year, we would have been completing reading comprehensions, maths assessments and SPaG tests to see how much we have remembered from the year. To keep you in the school spirit, this week's activities are a variety of different tasks that are designed to see what you know.

Now, because you are not in school and you don't need to do these activities in 'test conditions', if there is something that you find tricky, you can research it to help you find out the answers. I have attached all of the answer sheets too, so let me know your scores!

Maths is themed around division this week. We looked at this way back in our first term together - I wonder how much you have remembered?

Topic is all about our Royal Family. How much do you already know? Do you know who our Queen is? Do you know who is next in line to the throne? Hopefully, by the end of this week, you'll be an expert!

You have a reading, SPaG, maths and topic task for every day of the week and I have also attached some spelling tasks to keep you busy.

Keep working hard and keep in touch. Miss you all!

Love Miss Knox
